Shipmates Enjoy St. Louis Annual Reunion.

Our 33rd annual reunion was held at the Crowne Plaza St. Louis Airport on October 6. Every effort was made to make this one of our most affordable and enjoyable reunions ever!

Even though the turnout for the St. Louis reunion was a bit short of expectations, all went well and all in attendance surely had fun. The tours of local St. Louis attractions were a lot of fun, especially the Budweiser brewery!

$1,000.00 to our Sea Cadet program. Many of us feel that doing so publicizes the Association in a very positive way.

Join me in welcoming Andy Wright aboard as the newest member of our Board of Directors. You'll find Andy's contact information on our updated officer's page in this issue.

It was good to see several first-time attendees and

President's Corner

Greetings Shipmates, Here's hoping that all of you have had a Happy Thanksgiving.

The annual reunion has come and gone and I want to thank shipmate Mil Phillips for a job well done. Also thanks to Mike Perry for his help as our "boots on the ground" in St. Louis. Welcome aboard Mike!

If you missed this reunion, you missed a great time. Many thanks also go to Iris Phillips and Betty and Ben Bernardy for their help. Special thanks, too, to Bill Eanetta and Chuck Whitcomb for their help selling raffle tickets at the dinners. Lastly, Ben Bernardy deserves a big thanks for his generosity in donating his winnings on the split-the-pot raffle. The scholarship fund has increased due to shipmate Ben's generosity.

Making the Best of General Quarters.

The day arrived for our final, normally back-breaking, battle problem provided by the Guantanamo Staff.

They rode to sea with us each day, doing their best to make us better able to properly fight our ship.

I did my normal 04:30 check and report, and then took to the comfortable deck in the anchor windlass room. At 07:45 the Sea & Anchor Detail was called away and the other men arrived to pull the hook at 08:00. Everything went fine and we could feel the Coral Sea put out to sea as we awaited the announcement was made for all men to "man you battle stations."

The ship was buttoned up in three minutes. All watertight doors were closed and secured. Nobody will break watertight integrity after those three minutes. However, nobody walks away from the Sea & Anchor Detail until being relieved, either. And we had not been relieved!

Ahoy, Mates!

The reunion in St. Louis has come and gone. The numbers were not large but it was great to see old friends and make new.

By the time you get this newsletter, we will have already had Thanksgiving. I hope you all had a good one. Lynn and I send wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. We are looking so forward to our granddaughters coming home from college from Boston and Arizona. We have really missed them since

Secretary's Corner

Hope you and yours are well.

Hope everyone who was able to attend our Annual Reunion in St. Louis this past October enjoyed themselves as much as Sandra and I did. We went on the Busch Gardens tour, as well as the "Gateway to the West".

Thanks to Mil Phillips. He did a heck of a job, and the hotel was very nice and accommodating.

Next year will be San Antonio, Texas. Our hotel will be on River Walk. This reunion promises to be a big one. More info to follow.

Well it's off to The Puffers for the Annual Army/Navy game. More Snipes than you can shake a stick at! GO NAVY!

Happy Turkey Day and Christmas to all!

Again, please note for all future correspondence that I am dropping the P.O. BOX 4235 and only using our street address: 651 E Saginaw Way, Fresno, CA 93704.

Anna Fazzini Awarded First Place Scholarship.

Why We Need to Keep Our Armed Forces Strong.

Ed. Note: Anna Fazzini is the first place recipient of the tenth annual Coral Sea Association Scholarship contest. She is the granddaughter of Kenneth Stickel, an Association member from Belle Vernon, PA. Ken served in F Div. From 1948 to 1951.

Since I have existed in this world, there have been some notable lines drawn in the sand. When the threat to erase these lines swelled to a point of total political unrest, our armed forces had to be dispatched to protect them. As a country we found ourselves actively engaged in the invasion of Iraq, the Iraq war, the Haitian rebellion and the war in Somalia.

This is not unlike the history that had taken place before my birth. My predecessors witnessed death and destruction on a much larger scale with World War I, World War II and the Vietnam War. And yet, we have sustained as a country. The ideology our country was founded on has been protected. And carried from generation through generation there is a stark realization that the liberties and freedoms I enjoy today were the direct result of the men and women who chose to fight in these conflicts and wars.

And yet, it is these men and women that become the subject of political debates that ensure every time our country enters into a conflict. Should we send them? When do we pull them out? Should we finance this political operation? How do we finance it? Where will the money come? What can be taxed? What should be cut? The debates are endless.

Yet our men and women continue to sign up and serve as the banter between political rivals continues. No matter how passionate or eloquent the spoken viewpoints are when debating the pro's and cons, the one question that can silence them all is "Where would we be without the Armed Forces?"

That question can hit a nerve in every American. The underlying fear that you could be living differently and perhaps not so comfortably, deepens the sense of appreciation one has for the freedom and liberties we enjoy today. Imagine living under dictator rule, in impoverished conditions without the hope of rising out of those conditions. Or living in fear because of the religion you practice. Cowering in fear and lacking education because the fact you are a woman isn't deemed worthy enough.

There are a number of dissimilarities we can make between ourselves and the countries that surround us. We were taught during middle school and high school history classes about the effects of a dictatorship, how it is to live under the rule of communism and the differences between a socialist and anarchist form of government. We are constantly riddled with news reports about human right violations in other countries and other current event stories that highlight living conditions in other countries that seem improbable.

Most often we conclude that we are better off living here in the United States than we would be anywhere else. And that simple conclusion is at the very core of why we need to keep our Armed Forces strong.

We are fortunate that over 200 years ago, the founding fathers had the foresight and integrity to establish a country based on true and lasting principles. Yet even solid foundations get tested. Over and over again in history we have been witness to other countries and factions attempting to crack our foundation. We defeated them. Not always by words but by actions. Actions that were a direct result of the Armed Forces strategically deployed to protect our foundation. If we had not risen to the occasion, if we did not have the trained military equipment and manpower in place, where would we be now? So to answer the question succinctly as to, "Why We Need to Keep Our Armed Forces Strong?" look at it from the angle of another question: "Where would we be without the Armed Forces?"

Chaplain's Corner

Dear Shipmates,

As you read this, we will be well into the December round of holidays!

Christians will be celebrating the birth of Christ and Jews will be celebrating Hanukkah, the "Festival of Lights". And most everyone will probably have a decorated tree in their home and welcome family and friends in for holiday cheer.

Gift-giving is a hallmark of this season, and well it should be. The baby Jesus was a gift of God to His people, and the gift of the eight day oil supply in the temple is celebrated by the lighting of the menorah in Jewish homes and synagogues.

Maybe we shipmates of USS CORAL SEA can do a little gift-giving of our own. What do you think? I would challenge all who are able to do so, to give a gift of a one-year membership to a shipmate who is not a member of our association. Think over those with whom you served, check to see if they are a member yet, and then offer to give them a wonderful gift that will help them and help our association at the same time. You can tell them Santa gave it to them if you like!

From the Halley house in Suffolk, Virginia, to you and your family wherever you might be, we wish you a most pleasant and happy holiday season and the joy of giving gifts to others!

Your shipmate and chaplain,

they've been away, but they've been having a good time with learning, playing softball and making new friends.

A word about the reunion in St. Louis: The memorial service was good. It really honored our fallen shipmates. Please remember that if you hear of a shipmate going on to the Everlasting Cruise in the Sky, to please call one of the officers and let us know.

On a sad note, a couple of our shipmates' wives passed away in the weeks just prior to the reunion. Please remember Jim Johnson and Dave Eastman in your prayers. They are long time members of the association and I know they would appreciate it.

I would like to invite all the members of the association to come to the Florida Spring Fling at the American Legion in Venice. See the information elsewhere in the newsletter.

Any other sailors you know are also welcome to come join us to swap sea stories and fellowship.

Until I see you again, smooth sailing.

I've got to give a 'shout out' to Mike "Oscar" Pfeffer for the fine job that he does as Master-at-Arms. Thanks, Mike, for seeing to it that all the flags, banners, etc. make it to the reunions. Thanks to all, both to those who worked as well as those of you who came and had fun.

October 2012 will be here before we know it, so make your reservations now for the reunion next year. Also remember the 2012 "Spring Flings".

Needless to say, lots of “sea stories” got told and retold, which helps to make the reunion experience so good for everyone.

will be available on the CVA-43 Association website soon. Several ideas were discussed during the business meeting, including good ideas to save the Association money. One possibility is reducing the number of copies of Sea Breeze that are sent by U.S. mail. As you on-line shipmates know, Sea Breeze is posted on the Association website. There may be many of you who would be just as happy to get it there – in full color – rather than continue receiving the black-and-white mailed copy. I’d like to hear feedback regarding this idea, be it positive or negative. Just an idea, but his would save your Association money.

Shipmates, this Association does not operate automatically or by remote control. A lot of work is needed to put on reunions and take care of the routine business of the Association. Your help is needed. All volunteers for any task will be quite welcome. Several important jobs were taken over by several shipmates at this past reunion and I’m very thankful to them for volunteering. If any of you have any good ideas to make this a better operation, please contact me or any association officer. Our names and addresses are in this—and every—issue on the officer’s directory page. Please get in touch.

To all of you, I wish a very Merry Christmas & a Happy New Year!

Godspeed!

Coral Sea Cadets Get 'High Seas' Experience.

Cadets from the U.S. Naval Sea Cadet Corps, Coral Sea Div., based in Upland, Calif., got the opportunity last August to become real salt-water sailors. They served in a week-long training evolution, on board SS Lane Victory, a restored Liberty Ship built during World War II, and currently berthed in Los Angeles harbor.

Under the command of LTJG Brad Webster of the Coral Sea Div, five male and four female cadets swabbed decks, stood watches, handled mooring lines, loaded cargo, and assisted the crew of Lane Victory as they hosted over 700 passengers for a day-long cruise from San Pedro through Angel's Gate to Santa Catalina

around the ship, kept the catering staff stocked with ice, and staged a very moving memorial service for the crew of a Merchant Marine vessel who were killed in action during WWII. Sea Cadet gunners also fired the ship's anti-aircraft weapons, successfully driving off a squadron of Luftwaffe fighter planes (that somehow ended up off the coast of California!).

Coral Sea officers LTJG Peggy Betz, INST Jeffrey Shelton, and

INST Perla Borraro assisted the COTC in directing the cadets during the training. Cadets visited the US Coast Guard stations at San Pedro, touring the newest of the armed patrol boats, the USCGC George Cobb, and the galley. The next day, they visited LA County Fire Dept. station, during which they went on a half-day cruise on the department's newest fire boat, sharing the coastal waters with dolphins and a pod of blue whales. These newest Old Salts worked hard, slept little, and in all respects had the time of their lives! The captain and crew of the Lane Victory, and the passengers of the cruise, couldn't have been more complimentary about our cadets' discipline, military bearing, and enthusiasm. In all respects, the Coral Sea Div. was a credit to the proud heritage of their namesake, CVA-43.

opening a watertight door. Knowing that general quarters would last up to four hours—and with nothing more pressing to do and no place to go—we found a nice spot on the deck. We triced up the racks, turned the bulkhead electric fans in our direction, and did what any typical sailor would do in that situation: Caught up on some more of that lost sleep!

But we did feel terrible about missing out on all of the 'fun' of the final battle problem. Do you ever wonder if the Russian Navy ran into any similar problems during the Cold War? I'd be willing to bet they did!
